Hanover boy hit on bike now home; search on for driver

By TRENTON SCROGGINS

A 13-year-old boy from the Hanover area went home from the hospital late Sunday evening to his family, and, his mom says, back to enjoy his Xbox. But, that is far from the end of a story that began Saturday afternoon when the boy and a friend were enjoying a warm, sunny afternoon on their bicycles. The boy and his family still are trying to recover from what happened Saturday afternoon, and his mother has asked that The Madison Courier not use his name. Until the boy's name becomes a part of public record, the Courier will not use his name nor his mother's name. The two boys were riding their bicycles eastbound through Hanover, heading toward the BP gas station on the east side of town. As they rode along the road's white-painted border, one of the boys was hit, thrown from his bicycle and into the road. The other boy who was not hurt, Kristofer Carlson, immediately joined witnesses, to help his friend. Kristen Carlson, Kristofer's mother, echoed the words of her son when she said in an interview Saturday evening that her son's friend was knocked through the air and landed in the middle of the roadway. The vehicle involved stopped briefly, witnesses said, before leaving the scene. While all of this was happening, the injured boy's mother was at home — with his grandmother — enjoying the spring day. A knock at the door changed that when Kristen Carlson told the grandmother at the door what had just happened. "I thought I heard something but I didn't know if I heard it right," the boy's mother said. Then she heard it, the news that is a mother's nightmare — her son had been involved in a hit-and-run accident. "I was freaking out," the boy's mother said in a phone interview Sunday. "Hoping for the best, expecting the worst. I still can't wrap my mind around it. "Someone hit my child and left him dead, for all they know, in the road." She said she was at her car before anyone else. It took about 10 minutes to find the accident. When she arrived, her son was already in the ambulance. From that moment on, his mother said, she has left his side only once. Mother and son were taken to Norton Children's Hospital in Louisville. The boy sustained a head injury, according to a news release by Jefferson County Sheriff David Thomas, and was treated at the scene before the trip to Louisville. While at the hospital, the mother said, her son also was treated for two fractured wrists and severe road rash on his face and knees, but he is expected to fully recover. The mother said her son could no longer remember the accident, nor much leading up to it. All he knows, his mother said Monday morning, was that he was enjoying a beautiful spring day with his friend. But, the search continues. Around the same time the boy returned home from the hospital, the Jefferson County Sheriff's department released a surveillance photo of the suspected hit-and-run vehicle. It is a maroon-colored car. The sheriff's department said it believes there is damage to the passenger-side mirror. Law enforcement officers did find some evidence, the news release said. Kristen Carlson shared on social media a photo of what is believed to be a broken side mirror. Anyone with information should contact Deputy Ben Flint, Detective Yancy Denning or the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office at (812) 265-2648.

7-years-plus in Madison pipe bombings

Courier staff report

NEW ALBANY — David Theiring, 40, of Madison, was sentenced to 87 months in prison in a 2016 case stemming from the detonation in Madison of two pipe bombs. U.S. Attorney Josh J. Minkler announced the sentence Friday, April 5. U.S. District Court Judge Tanya Walton Pratt sentenced Theiring after his guilty plea March 22 to two counts of possession of unregistered destructive devices and one count of being a felon in possession of a firearm. "As citizens of this state and this country, we will not tolerate terrorism foreign or domestic of any kind. Those individuals who choose to threaten innocent lives will face the consequences of their actions," said Minkler. On March 6, 2016, Madison Police responded to reports of an explosion in the 300 block of Central Avenue around 1 a.m. Police determined after an investigation that an explosive device was detonated on the sidewalk near the entrance to the parking lot shared by Madison Police and City Hall. Officials found remnants of a second pipe bomb in the driveway of Jefferson Superior

David Theiring

Court Judge Michael Hensley on the afternoon of March 16, 2016. People who were inside the residence told police there was a noise around 3 a.m. that day, but nothing was reported to law enforcement until family members arrived home after work hours later and noticed a black mark and pieces of the device on the driveway.

Police arrested Theiring on April 1, 2016, and executed a federal search warrant at his Madison home on the same day. Federal charges were filed May 26, 2016. This case was investigated by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives in Louisville, Indiana State Police, Madison City Police Department, Jefferson County Sheriff's Office and Jefferson County Prosecutor's Office. "ATF strives to be 'no better partner' to law enforcement agencies, especially when investigating the criminal use of explosives and bombings," said Stuart Lowrey, ATF special agent in charge of the Louisville field division. "The sharing of resources and collaborative efforts with the Jefferson County, Indiana, Sheriff's Department and Madison, Indiana, Police brought about the swift arrest and incarceration of a dangerous felon. This sentence reflects ATF's ongoing commitment to reduce violent crime in our communities." According to Lauren M. Wheatley, the assistant U.S. attorney, who is prosecuting the case for the government, Theiring must be serve three years of supervised release after the sentence.

Road work near Clifty, Hardy Lake

Courier staff report

Four big construction projects starting this month will affect guests traveling to Clifty Falls State Park and Hardy Lake as well as Brown County State Park and Brookville Lake for part or all of the summer season. The most current information about alternative routes can be obtained at stateparks. IN.gov/7881.htm or by calling the respective property office, as listed below, before traveling. Here is the information available at this time: CLIFTY FALLS: State Road 256 from Austin to Hardy Lake Road will be closed for a road-widening project. This is the primary access to Clifty Falls off I-65 for guests traveling from the north. This project will continue SEE: ROAD WORK Back Page, Column 1

Fire calls twice in week at VSG

For the second time in a week, Madison Fire Department units received alerts of a water flow alarm from the sprinkler system at Vehicle Service Group. This time the call came Friday around 5:30 p.m. The fire department found dark smoke coming from the northeast corner of Plant #2 and determined that a paint booth and other equipment were involved in a fire. Just as earlier in the week, the sprinkler system activated and limited the spread of the flames. Fire personnel extinguished the remaining flames, including in areas where the sprinklers couldn't reach, said a fire department news release. The building was opened for ventilation and checked thoroughly for any fire extension. The fire department was on the scene Friday for about two hours. VSG was contacted for more information but did not respond.

Separate Indianapolis shootings kill 6 people in 24 hours

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — Police say five separate weekend shootings over a 24-hour period left at least six people dead. Police earlier said four people died and two others were wounded in three separate shootings Saturday night and early Sunday. Four of those shot were at a bar early Sunday, including a man and woman who died. Police say one victim was found about 9:30 p.m. Saturday along a street. Another was dead on a sidewalk after a shooting at an apartment complex later Saturday. A 17-year-old was killed about 3 p.m. Sunday and the sixth victim was shot shortly after 9:30 p.m. Sunday. East-side resident Arthur Littleton told The Indianapolis Star he was “shocked” to learn of the shootings and says it “isn’t how it’s supposed to be.”

Inmate charged after fecal matter thrown

PENDLETON — An inmate at the Pendleton Correctional Facility faces charges after fecal matter was thrown at corrections officers in separate incidents. The Anderson Herald Bulletin reported Sunday that Joshua Marshall, 35, is charged with felony battery by bodily waste. The newspaper reported from a court document that an officer was struck in the face, mouth and left side of his body by the material on Feb. 4 while walking past an inmate’s cell. Fecal matter also was thrown on a second officer. An officer also was struck by fecal matter on Oct. 26. A second inmate, Levi Salyer, 22, faces charges after an officer was spat on in November at the prison’s urgent care unit. Pendleton is northeast of Indianapolis.

Judge miffed by outfit, delays hearing

CROWN POINT — A judge was so miffed that a defendant dressed down for a court hearing that she postponed it and told him to dress nicer next time. Former Lake County councilman Jamal Washington, 45, is seeking a special judge in a domestic battery case. But when he showed up Thursday before Judge Diane Boswell, she wasn’t happy that he was wearing a white-knit velour sweater and jeans. The (Northwest Indiana) Times reported Boswell told Washington he should have known that he needed to wear a collared shirt to the hearing. She moved the hearing to Tuesday and told Washington that “we’re going to give you another day.” Washington faces confinement, domestic battery and other charges in connection with his alleged attack on a Gary city councilwoman.

Park added to register of historic places

MARSHALL — Turkey Run State Park has been added to the National Register of Historic Places more than a century after it opened. The park boasts scenic views of Sugar Creek, which meanders along sandstone cliffs and outcroppings and is traversed by a 200-foot-long suspension bridge. The Indiana Department of Natural Resources said Turkey Run State Park was added to the national registry because of its cultural value to Indiana and its national history. The park was founded in 1916 about 25 miles northeast of Terre Haute. It’s Indiana’s second-oldest park, after McCormick’s Creek. Turkey Run includes the Lusk Home, which was already listed on the national registry. The park’s state and national register certificates will be presented to park representatives during August’s Indiana State Fair.

State’s 1st measles case confirmed

INDIANAPOLIS — State health officials have confirmed a case of measles. The Indiana State Department of Health said it’s working with local health departments to identify anyone who may have been exposed to the patient at Cameron Memorial Community Hospital Urgent Care in Angola on March 30. It said the patient also visited three locations in Sturgis, Michigan, on March 31: Holy Angels Catholic Church, San Miguel Grocery and the Walmart Supercenter. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said 387 individual cases of measles have been confirmed in 15 states this year through the end of March. Michigan health officials on Friday said that state has 39 confirmed cases this year, including 38 in Oakland County, near Detroit. Indiana had one confirmed measles case in 2018.

daughter/granddaughter Barbara Pierce Bush will be delivering the May commencement address at northeastern Indiana’s Trine University. The granddaughter of George Herbert Walker Bush and the daughter of George W. Bush will speak at the May 4 commencement at Trine’s campus in Angola, Indiana. School President Earl D. Brooks II said Bush’s “experiences and insights, as both the daughter and granddaughter of United States presidents and from her humanitarian work after college, will be an inspiration” to the graduating class. The Herald-Republican reported that Bush graduated from Yale University with a degree in humanities in 2004. She’s now a humanitarian and the board chair of Global Health Corps, which she co-founded in 2009 to engage young people in solving the world’s biggest health challenges.

Man gets 6 years for crash that killed 2

INDIANAPOLIS — A man has been sentenced to six years in prison for his role in a 2017 highway rollover crash that killed two teenagers and critically injured three other people. Daniel Cannon, 29, learned his punishment Friday after being convicted in November of five counts of criminal recklessness and two counts of leaving the scene of an accident. Seventeen-year-old Taylor Parsons and 18-year-old Brandon Gross died in April 2017 when their car flipped over several times on Interstate 70 on Indianapolis’ west side. Investigators said Cannon had been involved in an argument with the young people at a park, and when the teens drove away, Cannon chased them. Cannon was identified in a photograph taken at the crash site after he returned to the scene.

Man convicted in 1998 rape and murder

INDIANAPOLIS — A man has been convicted in the 1998 rape and murder of a woman whose body was found partially burned inside a home. Kenya Edwards’ killing had remained a cold case until DNA from evidence collected from the 26-year-old woman’s body was matched to Johnny Jones, now 61, in 2015. A Marion County jury convicted Jones of sexual assault and murder on Wednesday. His sentencing is scheduled for April 26. Police found Edwards’ partially burned body inside a home on Indianapolis’ east side in November 1998. Her wrists and legs were bound with electrical cords and officers found signs of a struggle inside of the home and a broken window in the rear of the residence. An autopsy determined that

Edwards had died from thermal burns and smoke inhalation.

200 years in deaths of 2 women, fetus

FORT WAYNE — A man has been sentenced to 200 years in prison for the fatal shootings of two women and the death of one's unborn fetus. The Journal Gazette reported Deyante Stephens, 27, of Fort Wayne was given his punishment Friday after being convicted in February of three counts of murder and a firearms enhancement. Stephens was charged in the January 2018 slayings of Preonda Jones, 37, and Brianna Gould, 24, inside a home in Fort Wayne. Gould was pregnant. Prosecutors said it was a senseless act of violence. A lawyer for Stephens argued no one saw him shoot the women. A witness testified Stephens and another man left the home after hearing a loud noise and returned to find the women.

Indiana hospital closes weeks ahead of plan

CLARKSVILLE — A hospital that officials announced in February would close this spring has shuttered its doors weeks earlier than planned. The Kentuckiana Medical Center had been set to close April 27, but a message posted on the Clarksville hospital's website says it officially closed as of Monday. The News and Tribune reports that photos which hospital employees sent the newspaper show the building is currently being packed up and cleaned out. Employees recently received an email from a hospital official stating that the hospital "received confirmation from the state that we are no longer a hospital." The 80,000-square-foot hospital opened in Clarksville in 2009, and was started by a group of southern Indiana doctors at a time when doctor-owned hospitals and surgical centers were springing up nationwide.

Plant-based food maker plans $310M production plant

SHELBYVILLE — A company that makes plant-based burgers, sausages and other vegetarian meat alternatives plans to build a $310 million production facility in central Indiana that will eventually employ 460 people. Elmhurst, Illinois-based Greenleaf Foods SPC announced Monday that the plant would be built on a 57-acre site in Shelbyville near the intersection of Interstate 74 and State Road 44 and is expected to begin operations in late 2020. Greenleaf says the 230,000-square-foot plant will employ 460 people when fully operational in 2021. The Indianapolis Business Journal reports that Gov. Eric Holcomb was expected to join officials at a Monday groundbreaking ceremony in Shelbyville, about 20 miles southeast of Indianapolis. Greenleaf says the plant will be North America's largest plant-based protein facility, annually producing 60 million pounds of refrigerated alternative protein products.

Kentucky

Forums scheduled for input on foster care

FRANKFORT — Officials say regional community forums scheduled this month will allow people to discuss ways to improve outcomes for children and families involved in the foster care system. State officials say forums are scheduled for Monday in Owensboro and Tuesday in Madisonville in western Kentucky. Citizen Foster Care Review Boards in the region are hosting the forums. Officials say six regional community forums are scheduled statewide through April 18. Tom Stevenson, chairman of the Kentucky CFCRB, said the forums are a chance for people to talk about what can be done to make the system better for thousands of children and families. The forums stem from the enactment of 2018 legislation to address issues with foster care and adoptions.

E. coli cases affect over 70

LOUISVILLE — The federal government is investigating an E. coli outbreak affecting more than 70 people in Kentucky and four other states. The Courier Journal reported 46 cases have been reported in Kentucky. Cabinet for Health and Family Services spokeswoman Barbara Fox said six people have gone to the hospital because of the outbreak. News outlets say the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention report Tennessee has 21 cases. Other affected states include Ohio, Virginia and Georgia. Officials don't know whether a particular food item, grocery or restaurant is the source of the infections. The Kentucky health department said people usually become sick two to five days after eating contaminated food. State health officials announced the outbreak March 29.

Kentucky man accuses hospital of child abuse

HUNTINGTON, West Virginia — A Kentucky man said his infant son suffered a broken arm, fractured ribs and fractured legs while at the Cabell Huntington Hospital in West Virginia. The Charleston Gazette-Mail reported Ronald Cunagin, of Lovely, Kentucky, is suing the hospital and accuses its employees of battery and negligent supervision. The Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services investigated the baby's injuries and determined that someone deliberately harmed him. The lawsuit said Cunagin's son was born at the hospital in 2017 and was a patient for about a month. The baby was then transferred to a Kentucky hospital where he was diagnosed with his injuries. The lawsuit said genetic testing determined the baby didn't have any health issues that weakened his bones. The hospital didn't immediately return requests for comment.

Assistance available after storms, flooding

PAINTSVILLE — Low-interest disaster loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration are available for businesses and residents affected by storms this year. The loans are for those affected by severe storms and flooding from Feb. 6 through March 10. The area covered includes Johnson and Magoffin counties and the adjacent counties of Breathitt, Floyd, Knott, Lawrence, Martin, Morgan and Wolfe. Disaster loan outreach centers will be open through 4 p.m. Friday. Hours of operation are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day until Friday. The centers are at Johnson County Fiscal Court in Paintsville and Magoffin County Health Department in Salyersville. The filing deadline for physical property damage is June 3. For more information, call (800) 659-2955.

101st Airborne headed to Ukraine in April

FORT CAMPBELL — Dozens of soldiers from the 101st Airborne Division are deploying to Ukraine this month for a scheduled nine-month tour. Fort Campbell said more than 150 soldiers assigned to 2nd Brigade Combat Team "Strike" will advise the Ukrainian Armed Forces with development of a combat training center. The soldiers will replace the Tennessee National Guard's 278th Armored Cavalry Regiment, which arrived in Ukraine last summer. Development of the training center has been continuing since 2015. Ukraine is expected to assume full training responsibility sometime in 2020. The soldiers will conduct a colors casing ceremony Friday at Fort Campbell. The casing of the colors is an Army tradition that represents movement of the brigade to a new location.

Charges dropped against school principal

PADUCAH — Charges have been dropped against a high school principal who had been accused of mishandling a student's allegations of sex abuse. News outlets report that Michael Ceglinski is returning to his job at McCracken County High School after the last charge against him was dismissed. Authorities had alleged Ceglinski didn't report a student's allegations of sex abuse by a coach to police. An official misconduct charge was dropped last month after a prosecutor said he incorrectly interpreted the law in charging Ceglinski. A Friday order dismissing a charge of failing to report child abuse said Ceglinski can't be held "criminally liable" in the case. Former volunteer fishing coach John Parks pleaded not guilty to charges of sex abuse and using an electronic communications system to solicit a minor. The student accused Parks of touching him inappropriately.

Man charged with arson, murder in death

LONDON — A man has pleaded not guilty to charges related to his toddler son's death in a trailer fire. WKYT-TV reported that Vaughn Brock, 26, entered the plea Friday to charges of murder and arson in the death of his son, Joseph. An arrest citation said the nearly 2-year-old boy was found inside a washing machine after the fire March 30. Court records say Brock told police that he fell asleep while smoking a joint and woke up to the trailer filled with smoke. Brock was found Wednesday at a home in Keavy, Kentucky. Brock is being held in jail as he awaits a court hearing. Online jail records do not show if he has a lawyer.

Toddler's cancer now in remission

BOWLING GREEN — The family of a 21-month-old girl who was diagnosed with Stage 4 neuroblastoma more than a year ago is celebrating now that she is cancer-free. WBKO-TV in Bowling Green reported Molly Hughes went through five rounds of chemo, and her family recently learned she is in remission. Her mother, Chelsea Hughes, said she hugged her daughter for several minutes after getting the news. After 130 nights in a hospital, with chemo, surgery, radiation or other procedures, Molly is enjoying the same things as most kids her age like bubbles, tire swings and sunshine. Hughes said her daughter is energetic now and loves to go outside. Molly has lost some hearing from the treatment. She returns to the hospital Monday to start a trial drug to prevent relapse.

Hard Rock buying casino, horse track

CINCINNATI — Hard Rock International has reached a deal with Jack Entertainment to buy a Cincinnati casino and a horse track in Kentucky. The $780 million deal announced Friday will give Hard Rock and VICI Properties control of Jack Cincinnati Casino and Turfway Park in Florence, Kentucky. Hard Rock will oversee operations at both sites. Businessman and Cleveland Cavaliers owner Dan Gilbert owns Detroit-based Jack Entertainment. Jack Entertainment said the deal won't affect its Cleveland casino or Jack Thistledown Racino in northeast Ohio.

GROWING OUR FUTURE ONE TREE AT A TIME

In 2014, ASI with the help of many ASI members and volunteers from the community and surrounding area set out to plant more than 20,000 trees over a period of 6 years. To date, 18,627 trees and 4,409 shrubs have been planted. Please join us once again for the final year of our six-year journey as we plant more than 4,800 more trees and shrubs and SURPASS our goal! We hope you will join us on May 18th and be a part of this exciting event!

“We won’t know for a while” Time (and courts) will tell if we have a hate crimes law

By BRIAN A. HOWEY

NASHVILLE – Indiana now has a hate crimes law.

How credible the law Gov. Eric Holcomb signed on Wednesday will be determined by the courts at some future date.

In signing the law, Holcomb explained, “Our goal was to achieve a comprehensive law that protects those who are the targets of bias crimes, and we have accomplished just that. We have made progress and taken a strong stand against targeted violence. I am confident our judges will increase punishment for those who commit crimes motivated by bias under this law.”

But this came after weeks of muddled messaging. Holcomb signaled late last year that a law with a list of the potentially afflicted was one of his top priorities. He was moved by the defiling of a Carmel synagogue last summer. He vowed to be vocal. Many of us believed that this popular governor wouldn’t hesitate to use his ample political capital to achieve a high priority goal.

From a practical and legal standpoint, should Johnny Himmeler spray paint “Heil Hitler” on a synagogue or defile a home with a rainbow flag on the porch and a car with an equality sticker in the driveway, judges have the ability today to sentence while considering the aggravating circumstances at hand. Speaker Brian Bosma believed that to be the case before this session ever began, but Holcomb changed the equation.

Earlier this General Assembly session, Senate Republicans stripped out the “list” after a clandestine caucus debate. Last week House Republicans came up with a compromise forged behind closed doors and with little public input that Bosma called “a great solution” which would protect all.

On the eve of Senate concurrence, the governor explained, “The No. 1 priority for me is to make sure that when we adjourn from this legislative session, that all 6.6 million-plus Hoosiers are protected, and from what I’ve seen (this version) would do it.” But, he added that he will continue push for gender and gender identity in an explicit list. “I don’t want to go back, I want to go forward,” Holcomb said Monday. “And this will be a tremendous step in the right direction.”

So his vow to continue to push for the list reinforced doubt that all would be covered.

In the eyes of Gov. Holcomb and his commerce officials hoping to attract companies who recruit LGBT employees, this was (and is) about fostering a promising business environment. In the eyes of many in the Republican super majorities, Senate Bill 12 and then the final

HOUSE BILL No. 1020

DIGEST OF INTRODUCED BILL

Citations Affected: IC 5-2-1-9; IC 10-13-3; IC 35-38-1-7.1.

Synopsis: Hate crimes. Makes it an aggravating circumstance (for purposes of imposing a criminal sentence) that the crime was committed with the intent to harm or intimidate an individual or a group of individuals because of certain perceived or actual characteristics of the individual or group of individuals. Requires law enforcement agencies to report hate crimes to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Requires the law enforcement training board to adopt, not later than January 1, 2020, minimum standards for training of law enforcement officers regarding: (1) identifying hate crimes; (2) responding to hate crimes; and (3) reporting hate crimes.

Effective: July 1, 2019.

version Senate Bill 198 were (and are) about semantics ... about political correctness. And still to others, about “special protections” for classes of people they’d rather not think about and really aren’t interested in protecting.

These super majorities obscure other important things, like the influence of the Intolerance Wing of the Republican Party which, in the concealment provided by internal caucus debate, resisted what dozens of other states have done with hate crime laws, which is to explicitly list the afflicted classes. They carried the day; the “family advocacy” groups still wield outsized influence within the GOP. Speaker Bosma and Senate President Pro Tem Rod Bray acquiesced in the name of internal order and fear of primary politics.

Courage could be saved for another day.

The day Holcomb signed the law, former Indiana Supreme Court Justice Frank Sullivan Jr. said in a letter to the governor that SB198 “qualifies as a hate crime law that is legally

“Our goal was to achieve a comprehensive law that protects those who are the targets of bias crimes, and we have accomplished just that. sufficient and can be used by trial courts across Indiana to impose harsher sentences.”

Sullivan, who was appointed to the Supreme Court by Democratic Gov. Evan Bayh and is now a professor at the Indiana University School of Law in Indianapolis, said the “language of the bill is clear that acts of bias that are specifically referred to are not exclusive: Gender and gender identity, as well as age, citizenship, marital status, etc. are authorized to be used as an aggravating circumstance in determining a sentence every bit as much as race or religion or sexual identity. Just because a characteristic or trait is not specifically listed does not prevent it from being used to impose a harsher sentence.”

So, perhaps, the governor’s initial error was the declare an expectation for a specific list.

But State Sen. Ron Alting, the Lafayette Republican who sponsored the original SB12 and ended up voting against SB198, said on the Senate floor, “I say to everybody, it’s got to be everyone in it or I cannot support.” He added that the final verdict will come from the courts, judges and prosecutors. “Time will tell,” Alting said. “We won’t know for awhile.”

His SB12 co-author, Sen. Mike Bohaceck, R-Michiana Shores, voted for the measure.

So what we have here is a governor who promised to be “vocal” about signing legislation that included the “list,” then decided to work internally on a compromise as opposed to barnstorming the state, drumming up support.

As we’ve seen with dozens of other laws passed by the General Assembly and signed by governors, the legal and constitutional veracity often doesn’t withstand the scrutiny of the courts. So on this hate crime law, the ultimate verdict will come in the future.

State won’t fix rape loophole exposed in deception cas

By DAVE BANGERT

(Lafayette) Journal and Courier

WEST LAFAYETTE – If Indiana is going to fix a loophole in Indiana’s rape law – one that allowed a Purdue student to walk after tricking a fellow student that he was her boyfriend – it won’t be in 2019.

A pair of bills, introduced in the Indiana House in January and designed to deal with what happened in a bed in Purdue’s First Street Towers residence hall in 2017, did not get a hearing during the General Assembly session.

Though, sponsors of the measures say they’ll likely be back during the 2020 General Assembly session to see if they can get traction.

“Nearly 100 bills were assigned to the House Courts and Criminal Code Committee, so time was a factor,” said state Rep. Donna Schaibley, a Republican from Carmel.

Schaibley picked up where former state Rep. Sally Siegrist, a Republican from West Lafayette, left off with House Bill 1584, which was aimed at cases of rape by deception.

The question about Indiana’s sex crimes law stirred after the February 2018 acquittal of Donald Grant Ward, a native of Madison.

Ward was charged with rape after he climbed into bed and initiated sex with a fellow Purdue freshman in a dark dorm room.

The victim testified that she believed Ward was her boyfriend. She found out only after getting up to go to the restroom and returning to find Ward smiling up at her.

Ward’s attorney successfully argued that what he did might not have been the best idea or socially acceptable, it did not meet the standard for rape under Indiana law.

The state defines rape as an act of force, involving someone mentally disabled or when the victim is unaware of the sexual intercourse or sexual conduct.

In this case, Lafayette attorney Kirk Freeman argued that there was no force and the victim was aware that intercourse was happening. It wasn’t, Freeman argued, technically rape.

The jury agreed.

Schaibley’s bill would have added a definition of deception to the state’s rape law: “A person who knowingly or intentionally has sex with another person, or knowingly or intentionally causes another person to perform or submit to other sexual conduct when the person knows or reasonably should have known that the other person believed that the person is the other person’s spouse or significant other, commits rape.”

Siegrist had done much of the legwork on the bill during 2018, after the victim in the case, Abigail Finney, came forward, willing to tell her story, if it meant getting the loophole closed in Indiana.

When Siegrist lost her seat in the Indiana House, defeated by West Lafayette Democrat Chris Campbell in the November 2018 election, Siegrist recruited help from Schaibley. Finney’s story and Siegrist’s efforts were featured prominently nationally, including in late 2018 in a BuzzFeed report that went viral and on ABC’s “Nightline.”

After it was clear last month that House Bill 1584 wouldn’t get a hearing, Siegrist told the J&C she was disappointed there wasn’t more of a push to get the bill heard.

State Rep. Sharon Negele, an Attica Republican whose district includes a large portion of Tippecanoe County, signed on as a co-sponsor of HB 1584.

She also chalked up inattention for the bill to the volume of crime bills facing the House this year.

Could that change next session – and was a rape-by-deception bill one that was going to take more than one session to find a willing legislature, anyway?

“I think so,” Negele said. “I think it’s going to take some time. I also think that people have to get over their squeamishness about anything about sex outside of marriage. ... I think there’s certainly momentum there. This just wasn’t the session. And that happens.”

a three-year capital improvement plan by Sept. 30, 2020.

Without such a plan, the township wouldn’t be able to receive property taxes.

“After they complete the capital improvement plans (the bill would) allow them to transfer surpluses into another fund they can actually use. That’s been a big issue with a lot of these townships,” Ziemke said.

Given current budget surpluses, the plan would affect 88 Indiana townships. An earlier version of the bill would have required 451 townships to adopt a capital improvement plan.

Townships with high balances typically save surpluses for capital expenditures such as fire equipment, station improvements and parks.

this year,” Campbell said. “We’re definitely going to try to carry that again.”

Finney wasn’t immediately available for her thoughts.

Joyce Short, a New York activist fighting for consent laws, worked with Siegrist on what became House Bill 1584. She said she couldn’t believe that Indiana took a pass on the legislation this year, going as far as to say parents might want to consider that when choosing whether to send a child to Purdue or another university in Indiana.

“Rep. Siegrist was and is a formidable force and did a yeoman’s job bringing this dreadful loophole to light,” Short said. “One of the oldest doctrines of law is ‘nulla poena sine lege,’ which has come to mean, ‘What is not prohibited by law is permissible.’ My biggest concern is copy-cattng, since it is evident that there is no law to prohibit this defiling conduct. I’m hopeful that the legislature will see their omission differently in the future.

Township surplus bill moves to Indiana Senate floor

By SCOTT L. MILEY

CNHI News Indiana Reporter

INDIANAPOLIS — Legislation that would require officials of Indiana’s townships with high budget surpluses to explain their plans for capital projects passed this week through the state Senate Committee on Local Government.

The legislation, House Bill 1177 by Rep. Cindy Ziemke,

R-Batesville, now heads to the Senate floor. The bill has already passed the House.

Ziemke’s bill attempts to address excessive budget surpluses in many of Indiana’s 1,005 townships.

Across the state, townships had budgets totaling $389.3 million in 2017. But they had a total cash balance of $453.6 million, more than 16 percent above their budgeted amounts. That’s enough for 14 months of operating revenues, as much as seven times the generally accepted threshold for government units.

The bill is geared to townships that have capital improvement funds amounting to 150 percent of the total budget and exceeding $200,000. They would be required to complete

ISP investigating officer-involved New Albany shooting

Courier staff report

NEW ALBANY - Indiana State Police detectives and crime scene technicians from the Sellersburg ISP post are investigating a shooting that occurred Saturday between a New Albany man and officers from the New Albany Police Department.

A preliminary investigation has revealed that New Albany Police were sent to a residence in the 100 block of South Bohannon Lane after 1 p.m. in reference to a request for a welfare check on a male subject, Benjamin B. Lucas.

Officers made contact with Lucas to try to determine his well-being, said ISP in a news release.

The officers were fired on from within the house soon after making contact with Lucas. Lucas then exited the rear door of the residence and there was an exchange of gunfire between Lucas and the officers. Lucas was hit by gunfire.

The New Albany officers gave Lucas first aid at the scene before he was taken by ambulance to the University of Louisville Hospital.

Lucas was dead around 2:45 p.m., shortly after arriving at the hospital, said the news release.

Detectives from the ISP Sellersburg Post are leading the investigation with assistance from the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

The identities of the officers involved have not yet been released.

The investigation is ongoing, and an autopsy was scheduled to take place Sunday with the Kentucky Medical Examiner.

Ex-elementary teacher, coach gets 53 years for sexual misconduct

By LINDSAY MOORE (Lafayette) Journal and Courier

LAFAYETTE — Joe Kimerer, a former fourth-grade Amelia Earhart Elementary teacher and youth baseball coach in Lafayette, was sentenced to 53 years in prison

Friday afternoon.

Kimerer, 47, plead guilty to seven counts of vicarious sexual gratification and one count of attempted child exploitation, according to a plea agreement. According to his sentence in Tippecanoe Superior Court 2, Kimerer will have to spend 44 years of his sentence in prison.

In late February 2018, accusations surfaced that Kimerer was instructing young boys how to masturbate and solicited photos of them.

One year later, Kimerer pleaded guilty to one charge against him for each of the boys he abused, Kimerer's attorney, Earl McCoy said.

Kimerer remained out on bond leading up to the sentencing.

Indiana cracking down on synthetic drugs

By QUENTIN BLOUNT (Logansport) Pharos-Tribune

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indiana Senate unanimously approved House Bill 1186 on Tuesday giving the state code a much needed update to deal effectively with synthetic drugs.

HB 1186 is authored by State Rep. Sharon Negele (R-Attica), and sponsored by Ind. State

Sen. Mike Bohacek (R-Michiana Shores). It acknowledges and addresses the fact that synthetic, or look-alike drugs, have become a very real problem in Indiana.

Under current Indiana law, synthetic drug offenses are currently classified as infractions or Class B misdemeanors. In recent years, synthetic drugs have increased in potency and are much more likely to be bought and abused in Indiana.

Fentanyl synthetics in particular are on the rise and are capable of causing severe harm and even death. HB 1186 changes the current classification and will ensure crimes involving synthetic or analog drugs are prosecuted the same way the Schedule 1 drugs they are mimicking.

HB 1186 is also a serious attempt at staunching the number of new drugs added to the code each year by criminalizing the analogs of already schedule controlled substances. Now, a person caught trafficking or abusing an analog of an already controlled substance would be prosecuted as if it was a controlled substance.

In Memory of

DR. THOMAS G. PATTERSON of Hanover, Indiana and most recently of Buckeye, Arizona passed on March 26, 2019.

Dr. Patterson was born January 17, 1950 in the historic, Ohio Valley community of Madison, Indiana. He was the only son of Wallace Patterson and Grace (Bondurant) Patterson. He had one older sibling, sister Mary Elizabeth Patterson. All preceded Dr. Patterson in death.

Dr. Patterson is survived by his wife Dr. Kimberly A. Knott, retired superintendent of Clarksville Community Schools in Clarksville, Indiana, and his two daughters, Dr. Sarah E. Patterson of London, Ontario (Canada) and Ms. Julie A. Patterson of Madison, Indiana.

Tom was a life-long educator. He received his Bachelor of Science from Ball State University, Master of Science from Indiana University Southeast, and Doctorate from Indiana University Bloomington. He began his teaching career in Hanover, Indiana in 1975 and retired as Superintendent of Madison Consolidated schools in 2012; serving public education for over thirty years. His mission was to ensure that local control and equity for all remained core to public schools.

Dr. Patterson was involved in many professional and community organizations. He favored his leadership roles with the Indiana Association of Public School Superintendents' (IAPSS) and Indiana University Alumni Association.

He had a love of travel and was fortunate to spend time visiting most of the continental fifty states. Tom preferred the climate and terrain of the desert southwest. He also spent time traveling abroad. Spain and France were his favorite intercontinental destinations. In the end, he was a humble and kind, southern Indiana boy, choosing the Ohio River Valley as his final place of rest.

Dr. Patterson enjoyed many hobbies - from travel to books; working crossword puzzles to remaining informed about progress in public education. He was a passionate Cincinnati Reds, Indianapolis Colts, and Indiana University fan. Regardless of his residence, his favorite teams, National Public Radio (NPR) and Will Short were never far from the dial. Tom enjoyed playing guitar and had an affinity for Fender equipment. He was an avid golfer, eager to share after a day on the links that he believed he had mastered his "short" game!

At his request, the family asks that condolences and commemoratives be made with donations to:

- The Mary Elizabeth Patterson scholarship fund in memory of Dr. Thomas G. Patterson, C/O The Community Foundation of Madison & Jefferson County, P.O. Box 306, Madison, IN 47250.
- Online contributions can be made on the Foundation's Giving Page: cfmjc.org/give_now.php
- If making a donation by check, payment should be made to: The Community Foundation of Madison, in the memo line put Mary Patterson scholarship in memory of Dr. Patterson.

It was Dr. Patterson's wish to participate in research with the Mayo Clinics. As a result, services are pending.

Indiana to collect sales tax on short-term rentals July 1

By JASON THOMAS
(Jeffersonville & New Albany) News and Tribune

Ruth Floyd uses the income she earns from Airbnb to fund improvements to her circa-1880s home in downtown New Albany.

A retiree and “not quite a spring chicken anymore,” Floyd also is an unofficial ambassador of sorts for the Ohio River town, nudging guests toward places to grab a bite to eat and relax just a short stroll from her Mansion Row home on Main Street.

But Floyd is concerned about an Indiana law, passed in 2016 but effective July 1, requiring the collection of sales tax from online short-term rental platforms like Airbnb. She’s worried how potential guests might react to a possible increase in rates to compensate for the added levy.

“A lot of people that I meet, if it weren’t for Airbnb, they probably wouldn’t travel as much,” said Floyd, who rents out a bedroom in her pristine Queen Anne-style home decorated with appropriate furniture, with brochures on New Albany dining destinations within an arm’s reach of the poster bed. “They wouldn’t be spending money in Indiana, so if the fees start going up and people start saying, ‘well, I can’t travel anymore,’ then Indiana or whoever’s trying to make some money will lose out on all of that.”

KNOCK KNOCK, WHO’S PAYING?

Indiana is one of three states that currently doesn’t charge a sales tax for online short-term rental platforms, so how that levy will be collected and remitted is still up in the air. The law that will go into effect this summer stipulates that sales tax is to be collected by a facilitator, like Airbnb, if the rental transpired on such a platform, or the property owner if the property owner makes the transaction directly. A short-term rental is defined as a period of less than 30 days.

Legislation working its way through the General Assembly states that the homeowner is responsible for collecting and remitting the sales tax, but opens the door for companies like Airbnb to collect and remit the tax electronically. The measure, authored by state Sen. Karen Tallian, D-Ogden Dunes, which would amend the law set to take effect July 1, also provides an exemption from sales tax for property owners who rent their primary residence for fewer than 15 days in a calendar year.

“It has already been determined that renting out homes in Indiana is considered a business and therefore required to pay sales tax,” Tallian stated in an email. “These short-term rental properties should be on the same playing field as other businesses, and other hotel or B&B accommodations.”

According to Steve Shur, president of The Travel Technology Association, a Washington, D.C.-based trade association for rental platforms and online travel companies, the industry’s official stance is that short-term renting is a taxable activity — but the collection and remitting should be the obligation of the property owner.

Ruth Floyd is worried about the impact that a new sales tax on short-term rentals that will go into effect July 1 will have on potential guests of her New Albany home, which she rents out on the online platform Airbnb. (File photo)

The new law “put the burden of tax collection on the platform, rather than the homeowner, which we don’t believe is the right path,” said Shur, to whom Airbnb directed CNHI for comment. “What the law does is, it puts the burden on the platform first and absolves the homeowner from any responsibility for tax collection or remittance.” Shur added that platforms like Airbnb would welcome a voluntary agreement with the state in which it would collect and remit the sales tax as a way to streamline the process, like it does in the majority of other states with a tax on short-term rentals. Conversations to that effect have taken place in Indiana but “that’s a proprietary agreement between each company and the [Indiana] Department of Revenue,” Shur said.

Which is a big reason why short-term rental platforms favor Tallian’s bill, which sailed through the Senate in February and now sits with the House Committee on Ways and Means.

“We believe it should be the responsibility of a homeowner, and if a platform is capable, the state should allow a platform to come in and remit those taxes,” Shur said. “[In] some states that requires authorizing legislation, which I think is what Tallian’s bill does.”

Tallian’s bill also stipulates that applicable innkeepers taxes would still apply in addition to sales tax for the 79 Indiana counties that collect such a tax.

HOME SWEET HOME

It is unknown how much revenue a sales tax on short-term rentals might generate for Indiana. A fiscal impact statement attached to Tallian’s bill notes that because the owner of the property being rented, rather than a facilitator, would be required to collect and remit sales tax and innkeepers taxes, the state Department of Revenue may have to process additional tax returns. However, the bill’s requirements “are within the agency’s routine administrative functions and should be able to be imple-

Auction for early Terre Haute-made Coke bottle could be worth $150,000 at sale

By DAVE TAYLOR
(Terre Haute) Tribune-Star

A unique piece of Terre Haute and Coca-Cola history is scheduled to be sold at auction soon in Las Vegas.

An early Coca-Cola bottle to go up for bids April 14 is the only known “modified prototype” from 1915 that has surfaced intact, according to Morphy Auctions.

The bottle was produced at the former Root Glass Co. plant at Third and Voorhees streets, the “Birthplace of the Coca-Cola bottle.” Its creation was part of a nationwide competition to develop what would become a unique and instantly-recognized package.

The bottle came from the collection of a retired Coca-Cola employee who worked for Chapman Root, the auction house says in its online description.

“The bottle is as close to pristine as one could envision, with no chips, cracks, nor case wear,” the description reads.

The minimum bid for the more than century-old artifact is $50,000. Morphy estimates it will sell for between $100,000 and $150,000. The only other bottle like it sold in 2011 for $240,000 and it is not intact, according to the auction house.

The iconic bottle was designed by Root employee Earl R. Dean, though the patent bore the name of plant manager Alexander Samuelson.

Dean’s son, Norman Dean, documented the design’s origin and history in his 1910 book, “The Man Behind the Bottle.”

Notified about the auction via email, Norman Dean’s widow, Linda Dean, said, “My husband always said that his father was a very humble man. I know that Earl would shake his head in disbelief that this one particular bottle design of his made such enormous impact around the world and continues to do so more than 100 years later.”

Earl Dean always said “it was just another job to him, because he made bottle designs by the dozens for Mr. Root,” she said. “Earl R. Dean’s family and descendants have always been proud of our connection to the Coca-Cola bottle design and its enduring popularity. Its value goes beyond monetary. It is part of American culture.”

The auction will take place at Morphy’s gallery at 4520 Arville St., Las Vegas, as part of a three-day event, April 12-14. The auction includes Old West relics, coin-operated and gambling machines and antique advertising.

A Terre Haute-made Christmas Coke bottle from the same collection manufactured in 1933 will also be offered, as will other Coke-related collectibles.

The event starts at 9 a.m. each day. All forms of bidding will be available, including live via the internet a www.morphyauctions.com

Volunteers scramble to keep up with fallen ash trees

By CARSON GERBER
Kokomo Tribune

What do you get when you add 40 miles of trail together with thousands of dead trees?

A lot of work. Volunteers with the Nickel Plate Trail have put in overtime since the fall to keep the pathway clear of dead ash trees that have consistently blown over during an abnormal bout of torrential winds this season.

Bill Click, vice president of the nonprofit trail organization, said a perfect storm of circumstances led to the busiest year since the trail first opened more than a decade ago for volunteers who maintain the trail.

The biggest factor was an onslaught of the emerald ash borer that hit the area about five years ago. The invasive species laid larvae in the trees, which eventually led to their slow demise.

Mike Kuepper, president of the trail group, said up to 20 percent of all the trees along the pathway are ash trees. And by the end of last year, almost all of them were dead.

“That means between Rochester and Kokomo, there were a heck of a lot of dead ash trees,” he said.

Click said he knew the epidemic of emerald ash borer would eventually cause major problems along the trail and could be dangerous to bikers and hikers. This year, he was right.

“I thought, ‘We’re going to have a big problem,’” he said “Those ash trees, when they fall, they’re hurtling to the ground. You wouldn’t escape that if it fell on you.”

When the first big wind gusts hit last fall, the ash trees started coming down in droves, one after another. Some of them were small and didn’t take much to clear. But others were full grown, with trunks as big as 3-feet in diameter. Those trees sometimes smashed railings and caused other damage along the trail.

And the trees haven’t stopped falling since.

Kuepper said that’s led to volunteers working nearly nonstop, hauling chainsaws and ropes out to each tree to chop it up and get it off the trail.

“Sometimes we no more than get it open and another storm comes through and we’re right back at it again,” he said.

But the falling ash trees are way more than just a nuisance that needs to be cleaned up. They’re a serious safety hazard.

According to Purdue Extension, dead and dying ash trees are extremely brittle and prone to cracking and dropping limbs on people and property. People have been killed or injured in cities across the country by falling ash tree limbs. Experts say the trees must be removed before they die or lose major limbs to prevent these tragedies.

“Private individuals and cities who have chosen to ignore the risk do so at their peril,” according to Purdue’s website.

In fact, many insurance companies have begun refusing to pay for damage caused by dead falling trees.

So far on the Nickel Plate Trail, the falling trees and branches haven’t led to any injuries or accidents, although there have been some close calls.

Kuepper said trail officials are painfully aware of the threat posed by the trees. That’s why they issue “NPT Alerts” on their Facebook page to keep people off the pathway before strong winds or stormy weather are forecast to hit the area.

“As volunteers, we realize the safety of all this,” he said. “We’ve gotten a lot of money from the state, and we know we’re responsible for people’s safety, and we take that seriously.”

Considering there haven’t been any injuries, the abnormally windy winter and spring have actually turned out to be a bit of a blessing in disguise, Kuepper said.

“It was almost a godsend to knock down all those trees, because they fell down when nobody was out there,” he said. “Most of the ash trees are not easy to access or are located on a neighbor’s property and you can’t cut them down. So the high winds really cleaned out the trail.”

The fallen trees have more than doubled the amount of work the small group of dedicated volunteers normally put into keeping the nearly 40-mile trail clean.

Click said it highlights just how much really goes into maintaining such a long pathway that is privately owned by a nonprofit.

He said there are about 10 core volunteers who do most of that work, which includes repairing asphalt cracks, fixing broken posts and fencing, mowing, spraying weeds, cutting back encroaching overgrowth and maintaining the trail bridges.

The nonprofit also owns an industrial-sized blower to keep off all the small twigs and other debris that quickly piles up on the pathway. Click said it takes two full days to run the blower up and down the length of the trail and costs around $100 in gas for each cleaning.

“The trail is so long, it’s hard to keep up with just one blower,” he said. “There’s just a ton of work that needs to be done out there.”

Kuepper said it’s only thanks to dedicated volunteers that the trail stays as clean and well-maintained as it does. Even with so many trees falling recently, the pathway has never been blocked or closed for more than 24 hours, he said.

“It’s all volunteers,” Kuepper said. “We don’t have enough money in the budget to hire out work, and volunteers can be hard to come by. But in some ways it’s a blessing, because we take care of it better than if it was just your day job. It depends on the way you look at it.”

Madison breaks through late for 6-1 win in pitchers' duel at Southwestern

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

In a game that saw two pitchers wage the type of duel not often seen in high school baseball nowadays, it was Southwestern that blinked first.

Madison's Hunter Ferris carried a no-hitter down to the final out and finished with seven strikeouts to lift the Cubs to a 6-1 win over their county rivals Friday in Hanover.

While Ferris was nearly unhittable, Southwestern's Bailey Elliott was simply dominate, striking out eight of the first 10 batters he faced and finishing the game with 10 punchouts without a walk.

But errors — including two in the seventh inning — doomed Elliott's masterpiece and cost him the loss as Madison escaped with the win.

"I thought Ferris was just phenomenal tonight," Madison coach Tim Armstrong said. "He didn't want the repeat of Tuesday night (when he lasted only two innings). That's the best I've seen him throw in two years since a game in St. Louis in a Legion game. He's got to trust himself and trust his defense and he did that tonight."

Ferris walked leadoff batter Tyler Kramer to open the first inning but didn't allow another baserunner until the sixth inning when he walked Kramer a second time. The right-hander wasn't overpowering, striking out only four batters over that span, but he used his curveball to induce ground balls and pop-ups and the Madison defense scooped up every one.

Ferris needed his best stuff because Elliott came out firing. He struck out the first two batters he faced, added three more punchouts in the second and two more in the third while baffling the Cubs with an array of off-speed and breaking pitches. Madison managed only three base-runners through the first five innings, two via hits.

"I couldn't be more proud of Bailey's effort. He's always been a little bulldog out there and this was his opportunity. I think he felt that he was ready all day," Southwestern coach Derik Hutton said. "The way he pitched was phenomenal. I couldn't have asked more with the way he pitched."

But Southwestern's defense began to show the cracks that would ultimately cost them a chance at victory. The Rebels committed an error in the fourth inning and then made a crucial mistake in the sixth that opened the door for the Cubs.

Showing the type of patience at the plate it didn't possess earlier in the game, Madison finally began squaring the ball against Elliott in the sixth and it paid dividends. Trenton Barnes led off the inning with a single and Cooper Yancey followed by reaching on an error. Evan Chism then brought Barnes in with a groundout.

That first run not only broke the scoreless deadlock, but it also opened the gates. Anthony DeMarco laced a hit into right field to plate Chism with the second run and give Madison a 2-0 lead.

The Cubs (3-1) did most of their damage in the top of the seventh. Ferris helped his own cause with a double and Gabe True followed with a single and an error brought both runners in. After Chism singled on Elliott's 114th pitch of the game, Hutton made the move to bring on Landon DeAtley in relief. Zach Forner greeted DeAtley with a two-run double that blew the game open.

"You've got to give credit to Bailey. He's a good kid and I've coached him in Legion for two years. He's a bulldog. That's just the way he is. You know he's going to battle," Armstrong said. "Our discipline at the plate wasn't very good early but I think (Elliott) probably wore down a little bit and that's when we were able to get some guys on and if we can get some guys on, we can make some things happen."

All six runs ended up being credited to Elliott but only two were earned. And, in reality, the Rebels (1-3) had plenty of chances to keep the Cubs off the scoreboard entirely.

"I'm frustrated and the kids are frustrated that we couldn't give a better effort defensively and offensively to back (Elliott) up," Hutton said. "When you have somebody out there working like he is and doing such a good job, you've got to find some way to piggyback on him. You've got to have his back. You've got to want to have the ball hit to you and to have that killer instinct defensively and right now, we don't have that."

With Madison now holding a 6-0

Rebs' Cline runs 49.97 400M in win at Inferno

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Southwestern's track & field teams wrapped up action in the two-day Red Devils Inferno at Jeffersonville High School on Saturday.

The boys team scored 17 points to place 11th out of 13 teams while the girls had six points to place 14th.

Mitchell Cline claimed a win in the boys 400-meter dash in 49.97 — 0.15 seconds faster than Cline's school record 50.12 he posted at the regional last May — the lone top-three finish by any Southwestern athlete.

Floyd Central scored 169 points to win the boys team title with Lawrence Central placing second with 131 and New Albany third with 99.

Warren Central scored 157 points to win the girls meet with Floyd Central coming second with 128 and Lawrence Central was third with 78.83.

Cubs run Cross Bones Relays
Madison track & field had a strong showing at the Cross Bones Relays at Greensburg on Saturday.

No team scores were compiled in the event, but the two squads combined for five top three finishes and two wins.

"I was very excited about the splits that the guys ran on the two winning relays. Good things are happening when we have 10 personal or season bests on the day," Madison boys coach Scott Holcroft said.

Rebs rally 5-4 in 7th en route to sweep of Twisters

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Southwestern softball used some late-game heroics and a blowout to post a doubleheader sweep of Oldenburg at home on Saturday.

Game one proved to be the better of the two contests which saw the Rebels pull out the win in their final at-bat.

Karli Youngs led off the pivotal seventh inning with a single to left field and Brooklyn Sachleben moved courtesy runner Bella Marcum into scoring position. Abby Ralston then laced a walk-off double to score Marcum with the game-winner.

Both teams took turns answering each other on two-run rallies. Oldenburg got two runs in the top of the first and Southwestern answered in the bottom half. The Twisters went back on top with two runs in the fourth only to have the Rebels answer with two again in the bottom of the fourth.

"This was a great game for the girls. Our defense was good and we answered every time Oldenburg scored. When it looked like we were in trouble, either we got big hits and scored or Lakyn (Wilson) got a big strikeout," Southwestern coach Duane Ralston said. "We had some great at-bats from several girls up and down the lineup that contributed to this win. We had some big hits from Trinity (McLain) and Kassey (Worcester) when we needed them."

"This is one of those games you remember for a long time," Ralston added. "The last inning couldn't be scripted by a coach any better."

Wilson struck out 12 batters and did not issue a walk while allowing four runs on seven hits in seven innings to pick up the win.

Abby Ralston went 2-for-4 along with her game-winning double, while Abby Fulton and Olivia Bruce each were 2-for-4.

Game two wasn't nearly as dramatic as Kailey Burns fired a two-hit shut-out and Southwestern rolled to an 11-0 win in five innings.

The Rebels scored one run in the first and three in the third before piling up seven runs in the fourth inning to blow the game open.

Burns struck out five and did not walk a batter while twirling her two-hit gem.

"I think the first game gave us momentum for the second game. We did a nice job hitting but I was really happy with our pitching and defense," Duane Ralston said. "We had some nice plays from some young players. Kailey only allowed two hits and was very efficient on the mound. She pitched really well today."

Abby Ralston had two doubles, scored three runs and had an RBI. Worcester had two hits, scored twice and had an RBI, Bruce was 2-for-2 with two RBIs, Fulton had a triple, two runs and two RBIs and Morgan Mahoney had a hit, two RBIs and scored a run.

Southwestern (3-1) was to host Rising Sun on Monday.

Pacers rally from 11-1 deficit to beat JCD 13-12 in 8th

Switzerland County trailed Jac-Cen-Del 11-1 heading into the bottom of the third inning but the Pacers weathered the early storm and made a monstrous comeback for a 13-12 win over the Eagles in 8 innings on Friday night in Ohio River Valley Conference softball action.

The comeback comes just four nights after Switzerland County nearly pulled off the same feat after trailing South Dearborn 9-0. But unlike Monday's narrow 13-11 loss, the Pacers were able to put it all together for their first ORVC win of the season.

"We showed Monday night after trailing 9-0 that we are capable of making a big comeback," Switzerland County head coach Hannah Cook said. "The last three years we would have been done a long time ago. We had no quit in us tonight and put it all together. I think this is a real special team."

Madison 9th, Southwestern 13th at Floyd golf invite

COURIER STAFF REPORT

Both Madison and Southwestern competed in the Floyd Central Golf Invitational at Valley View Golf Course on Saturday.

Madison placed ninth out of 15 teams with a 349 while Southwestern was 13th with a 377.

Hunter Mefford led Southwestern with a 76 while Trenton Hadley shot an 89, Austin Kramer a 93 and Camden Ashby a 119. Steven Stillwell carded a non-scoring 134.

“This has to be one of the toughest Invitationals in the state. A third of the field qualified for the state tournament last year. It was great experience for us to see what it is like playing with the best teams in the state,” Southwestern coach David Bright said. “Considering it was on a tough course that we haven’t even seen before I thought we fared pretty well. Hunter got off to a slow start but finished strong and posted a solid top 10.

“They will improve with more experience. We left about 30 strokes out there on the course easily which would’ve put us under 350 and that is where I can see us getting down to eventually,” Bright said. “Overall we weren’t too far from really competing with these heavy hitters in the state which is promising.”

No results for Madison were available.

Defending state runner-up Center Grove won the tournament with a 312, just two strokes ahead Evansville North, which finished fourth in the state last year. Floyd Central (315), Castle (318), Roncalli (318) rounded our the top five. Both Floyd and Castle competed in the state finals last year, placing 10th and 12th, respectively.

Both teams return to action on Monday as Southwestern hosts Scottsburg at Butler Falls Golf Course in Hanover and Madison hosts Seymour at Sunrise Golf Course.

Bob Knight returns to IU

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — Bob Knight returned to Indiana University on Saturday, the former basketball coach’s first public appearance on campus since he was fired almost 19 years ago.

Knight returned to watch the Hoosiers’ baseball game against Penn State from the press box. The Big Ten Network was broadcasting the game when Knight made the impromptu golf cart ride to the field.

Athletic director Fred Glass has repeatedly made overtures to bring back Knight. Each time Knight declined.

The Hoosiers first attempted to make amends by adding photos of Knight inside Assembly Hall, the basketball team’s home arena.

In 2009, the school inducted Knight into the athletic Hall of Fame, but Knight skipped the ceremony. He wrote a letter to Glass at the time, explaining he didn’t want to create a “media circus” that would distract from the other inductees.

Knight also stayed away from the school’s 40-year reunion for his 1976 national championship team — the last unbeaten team in Division I men’s basketball — prompting many to wonder whether Knight would ever return to the university that made the former Ohio State player and Army coach a household name in basketball circles and beyond.

It wasn’t immediately clear what prompted Knight’s change of heart. But there have been recent reports that the 78-year-old Knight has not been in good health.

During a speaking engagement Thursday night at Center Grove High School on the south side of Indianapolis, The Indianapolis Star reported there were times he struggled with his memory.

But Knight returning to campus was a welcome sight for longtime Hoosiers fans.

Langford to enter draft

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — Romeo Langford says he will enter the NBA draft after playing just one season at Indiana.

The Hoosiers star guard told ESPN.com on Thursday he will make his decision official next week.

It’s hardly a surprise.

The state’s reigning Mr. Basketball Award winner was widely regarded as one of the nation’s top recruits and chose the Hoosiers over some of the country’s most prestigious programs including Kentucky and Louisville, just across the Ohio River from his hometown of New Albany, Indiana.

He didn’t disappoint in college. Langford led the Hoosiers with 16.5 points per game and added 5.4 rebounds and 2.3 assists — earning second-team all-Big Ten honors as well as all-freshman honors. But he did not play in the Hoosiers’ NIT run because of a back injury.

Langford also plans to have surgery for a torn ligament in his thumb.

“I think it’s fair to say that we never got a chance to see me at my best at the college level, especially since I’ve been playing with basically a cast on my thumb the whole season,” Langford said. “Obviously that throws off your shot. Even though I didn’t shoot as well as I’m capable of, I feel like I shot the ball pretty well in the second half of the season.”

The 6-foot-6 freshman played his best when he could drive to the basket.

“I’m looking forward to showing NBA teams all the things that they didn’t see out of me during the college basketball season,” he said.

IU QB wins waiver

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — Indiana quarterback Jack Tuttle

has been granted a waiver by the NCAA and will be eligible to play next season.

The redshirt freshman transferred from Utah in December and will have four years of eligibility remaining. Hoosiers coach Tom Allen issued a statement saying he “looks forward” to seeing Tuttle compete for the starting job this fall.

Racers’ Morant to declare

MURRAY, Ky. (AP) — Murray State says that All-American guard Ja Morant will enter the NBA draft following a record-breaking season for the Racers.

The school said Morant announced his decision at the team’s arena. The athletic 6-foot-3 sophomore is projected as a lottery pick and could be chosen as high as second in the June 20 draft.

Morant, who averaged 24.5 points per game last season, is the first NCAA player to average 20 points and 10 assists since assists became an official statistic in the 1983-84 season.

Helping youth cope with trauma

Youth shelter celebrates with 32nd annual dinner

By Trenton Scroggins

What happened to neglected or abused children removed from their families 35 years ago? In Jefferson County, they went to jail. After years of strenuous efforts, these children now go to the Jefferson County Youth Shelter in Madison.

Last week the shelter had its 32nd annual auction dinner to raise funds for daily operations and programming.

Mary Elizabeth Goldsmith, was one of the founding board members responsible for bringing the needs of these children to light, collaborating with a community to establish the area's current shelter.

"There was a real need," Goldsmith said. "Back then the kids were just sent to the jail," because there was nowhere else to go.

"Then concerned citizens got together" and started fundraising with an idea. "They found the house still being used for it. We had to hire someone to run it and start that way. At times there would be more (kids) than at other times."

The children were coming from "abuse, neglect in their home, some of them were coming from probation," Goldsmith said. "The goal was to take care of them in a safe, secure place. The agencies involved with those children were trying to reunite them with their parents or other relatives."

Goldsmith was the director of what was then the welfare department. It was Goldsmith's responsibility to place children, and, from her position, she also directly supervised each caseworker engaging with the children.

"It certainly served a need in the community at the time," Goldsmith said. "And, I'm certain it still does. I've been retired from my position for 21 years now."

"My fear is that it's going to get worse before it gets better," she said. "I can remember, well, 30 years ago, some of us in the office were — then we were seeing cocaine being evident in the families we dealt with. We feared them what was going to happen 10 years down the road. Today, with the meth and all, it's just exploded."

"Yeah, I still worry about the kids. I have children, and grandchildren and great-grandchildren, I have reason to," Goldsmith said. "I understand what it's like, I lost my husband when I was young, and had three kids I had to raise alone. Luckily I had an education and work ethic. Unfortunately, a lot of families don't."

Director Troy Hedges recalled a story of a young girl whose time had come to an end at the shelter after two months. She was leaving the shelter and turned to Hedges, saying she wanted to stay.

"She said, 'Troy, I wanted to thank you. If it wasn't for this place, I wouldn't be alive.'"

Hedges said, "Well, you're scaring me. But, I didn't start the shelter, Jefferson County did — the wonderful people here."

Hedges said 32 years ago, when the shelter was established, one of the founding board members, Jane Jacobs, the late publisher of The Madison Courier, had said, "When we started the shelter, we hoped it would last 15 years."

Hedges said the shelter now houses up to 10 young people at any point in the year. The young people, who are between 10 and 18, are referred through the Department of Children services or the probation department. The focus is on Jefferson and Switzerland counties.

The shelter served 81 young people for a total number of 1258 days in 2018. Three-fourths of the young people were from Jefferson and Switzerland counties.

There are 14 employees who work for the shelter. Hedges said a minimum of 11 employees are required, but the current goal is to have 18 employees.

It takes about $315,000 dollars to run the shelter each year, Hedges said. He said there are four fundraising events each year with a goal of bringing in 10 percent of the budget. The annual dinner brings in $1500 to $3000, but final numbers for this year aren't available yet.

Hedges encouraged families in the community who want to help to become involved with organizations either by volunteering to promote positive youth development, learn about youth-experienced trauma, to consider fostering, mentoring, or some other facet of youth service.

A lot of kids need people to encourage them, Hedges said.

Courier staff writer Trenton Scroggins can be reached at (812) 265-3641 or at tscroggins@madisoncourier.com

During the annual dinner event, there was an auction to help raise money for the youth shelter. This auction included framed items like an American Flag (left) and a photo of

At more than 25 locations across Indiana, Ivy Tech Community College will be hosting College 101 night on April 18 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

During this event, high school students and their parents or guardians will have an opportunity to speak to Ivy Tech representatives to discuss financial aid, picking a major, enrollment steps and much more. College 101 Night also finds students and parents or guardians the opportunity to see what Ivy Tech has to offer, which includes certificate programs, affordable tuition and transfer options.

Ivy Tech serves communities across Indiana, providing education and driving economic transformation. It is the state's largest public post-secondary institution and the nation's largest singly accredited statewide community college system.

This event is open to all high school students, including Ivy Tech dual credit students and 21st Century Scholars. Participants can RSVP to the event. For more information about participating locations or the event itself, go to IvyTech.edu/College101

Division of State Parks awards

The Department of Natural Resources Division of State Parks recently honored volunteers and employees for their continued commitment to conservation in 2018.

Outstanding volunteer awards went to:

- Gerald Thomas, who has been volunteering at Fort Harrison State Park for more than 10 years. Thomas walks trails, picks up litter and photographs the park for staff.

- Kenny Karem, who has been a Falls of the Ohio State Park Foundation board member for several decades. Karem has fundraised, led hikes and volunteered at the many functions the Falls of the Ohio has hosted.

Partnership awards went to:

- Tippecanoe River State Park and the Pulaski County Soil & Water Conservation District for their restoration of a riverbank that was losing an estimated 20 tons of sediment a year. In the process of this restoration, they created an area that can be used by park guests.

- Ouabache State Park and the Friends of Ouabache State Park for their work on funding and restoring the historic park fire tower that had been closed since 2015. The friends group generated $75,000 in dona-

Indiana State Parks celebrates National Volunteer Week

Hoosiers can help Indiana State Parks celebrate National Volunteer Week from April 7 to April 13 by donating their time to maintaining trails to helping in a nature center.

"Volunteering gives you a great sense of accomplishment," said Jody Heaston, volunteer coordinator for the Department of Natural Resources Division of Indiana State Parks. "You know you are helping manage and conserve our natural and cultural resources for future generations to enjoy."

State parks across Indiana will be participating in National Volunteer Week by having scheduled programs to help maintain and clean parts of each park. For a complete list of programs, go to www.calendar.dnr.IN.gov

When family preferences become an obsession

Dear Annie: I am in my mid-60s and retired, as is my husband. We have family scattered around the country and travel quite a bit. It has become quite obvious that our kids' generation is totally consumed with a certain famous coffee brand. I like to refer to it as "Fancypants Coffee." Every morning starts with rushing off to the Fancypants Coffee shop, whether we are visitors or hosts. No more relaxing at home on a Saturday morning with the grandkids playing. It doesn't matter if we purchase this brand of coffee to have at home; that's not good enough. All of my friends are having the same issues with their kids.

Food has become another impossibility. If they come to visit, we have to go out and buy different milk, bread, water, salt and so forth. Somehow the notion of eating what is served when one is a guest in someone's home has been completely eliminated. Of course, I am not talking about folks with serious food allergies, but nobody ever died from consuming a different brand of orange juice or bread for three days. If we go out to eat, the poor waiter has to answer all kinds of silly questions about whether the bread is organic or not. Again, nobody ever died from eating nonorganic bread once.

Whatever joy there might be in visiting family members starving. Be grateful for what you have.

Annie Lane

I hope you have some clever solution for this problem, and I wonder how many others find this all to be so ridiculous. — Grandma

Dear Grandma: Not a clever solution, I'm afraid, just a simple one: You're not obligated to accommodate everyone's dietary preferences. If you don't want to stock your house with all the special brands of food that your kids want, don't. Let them go out to the store and pick up what they'd like, while you stay home and enjoy watching the grandkids play.

Dear Annie: Your response to "A Fly in the Ointment," regarding her verbally abusive husband, was a good one, but she should be aware that discussing it with a counselor or another third party might not yield results quickly or even might cause her husband to become worse at first. Such behavior most likely stems from some deep insecurities or hosting them has been eliminated by this exhausting fussy obsession with "Fancypants Coffee" and strict adherence to certain food beliefs. There are people that he doesn't know how to deal with, and it's likely that the only way he can express himself is through negative statements or sarcasm.

I went through something similar with my ex-husband. Almost every time I went out with friends or mentioned that I needed to speak to a male friend or colleague, he would say something about my having boyfriends on the side. Seeing a counselor didn't help, because he didn't want to talk about what he felt was a private matter, and he blamed me for his shortcomings. I eventually left him when he began to pile on unfounded accusations and tried to control my actions.

I hope "A Fly in the Ointment" can resolve her situation in a satisfactory way. — Been There, Left That

Dear Been There: I do, too. Thanks so much for writing and sharing your firsthand perspective.

HOW TO PLAY:

Each row, column and set of 3-by-3 boxes must contain the numbers 1 through 9 without repetition.

BRIDGE

AFTER TRICK ONE, KING FROM ACE-KING

Eugene Field, when critiquing an actor in a production of “King Lear,” wrote, “Mr. Clarke played the king all evening as though under constant fear that someone else was about to play the ace.”

Yesterday, we started looking at deals that exhibit why, after trick one, you lead the king from an ace-king or king-queen holding, and an ace-lead is unsupported, asking partner to encourage only with the king.

In today’s deal, South is in five clubs. How should East defend after winning the first trick with either the spade ace (West led the spade two) or the heart ace (West led the heart five)?

In this auction, two diamonds is a strong jump shift, showing either long, strong diamonds or good diamonds and primary club support. The typical high-card point-count is 13-16.

Note that three no-trump can be defeated if the defenders are careful.

I think I would have led the spade two, preferring to lead from a king than from a queen because it needs less from partner to gain quick tricks. The auction should leave East-West realizing that they need to rake in three immediate winners.

After taking the first trick, East should see that he needs his partner to hold one of the major-suit kings. But which one does he have?

East finds out by leading his other ace, denying the king, and noting partner’s signal. If West encourages (as he will in spades), East continues that suit. But if West discourages (as he will in hearts), East reverts to the other suit (spades here).
